1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 1-13 recite a method for performing a mathematical function. The claimed invention comprises a plurality of mental steps whereby the claimed mental steps are non-statutory subject matter. Specifically, the claimed method steps can be practiced mentally in conjunction with pen and paper. Apparatus claim 14 does NOT recite a specific machine.

However, in order for such a claimed computer-related process to be statutory, the method claims must include either a step that results: (1) in a physical transformation outside the computer, (2) in a limitation to a practical application, or (3) performed specific machine/element(s). Accordingly, claims 1-14 are clearly directed to a non-statutory process.

3. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wang et al (Applicants' admission Prior Art).

Wang et al disclose a parallel-decomposition algorithm for performing convolution, e.g., see abstract (lines 1-5); section 1, lines 33-41; and section 4, especially equation (10). It is noted that Wang et al do not show the detail steps / hardware as claimed; however, a person having ordinary skill in the art could design the claimed invention according to Wang et al's teachings because the proposed parallel-decomposition algorithm technique discloses a detail for performing convolution as claimed.

4. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gardner (Applicants' admission Prior Art).

Gardner discloses in section 2 and Fig. 3, a parallel-decomposition algorithm $[y = x * h = y + y + y + y]$ by parallel processors (see section 6). It is noted that Gardner does not show the detail steps / hardware as claimed; however, a person having ordinary skill in the art could design the claimed invention according to Gardner's teachings because the proposed parallel-decomposition algorithm technique discloses a detail for performing convolution as claimed.

5. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Torger et al (Applicants' admission Prior Art).

Torger et al disclose a parallel-decomposition algorithm for performing convolution, e.g., see section 2.2 and Fig. 5. It is noted that Torger et al do not show the detail steps / hardware as claimed; however, a person having ordinary skill in the art could design the claimed invention according to Torger et al's teachings because the proposed parallel-decomposition algorithm technique discloses a detail for performing convolution as claimed.

6. Due to the new grounds of rejection cited above, that the office action is NON-FINAL.
